Meet: Emily Hoff – Pennsylvania

Emily believes “disability shouldn’t define a person.” She passes on the message at Children of America, where she’s an assistant toddler teacher. “I teach my students about diversity and acceptance every day,” she says, “because it matters every day”—a belief she’s held since she was a teen. She picked up her passion for inclusion while a student at Lower Moreland High School, and it inspired her long-term goal to work with special needs children. But first, she felt she needed a strong foundation in early childhood education, so she decided to get her Child Development Associate® (CDA) Credential™.

“My school didn’t have the program, so I became the first Lower Moreland student to go out of the district to take a course,” she says. “I worked out a plan with my school that allowed me to gain all the class credits and hours of experience needed to earn my CDA, and I was ready to work with young children right after graduation,” she says. Now she’s working toward her BA with the plan to become a life skills teacher. It’s a job that demands a lot of patience and persistence, but Emily has a passion to help all children reach their promise.

What is the CDA®?

The Child Development Associate® (CDA) Credential™ is the most widely recognized credential in early childhood education (ECE) and is a key stepping-stone on the path of career advancement in ECE.

The CDA credential is based on a core set of competency standards, which guide early care professionals as they work toward becoming qualified teachers of young children. The Council works to ensure that the nationally transferable CDA is a credible and valid credential, recognized by the profession as a vital part of professional development.

CDAs have knowledge of how to put the CDA Competency Standards into practice and understanding of why those standards help children move with success from one developmental stage to another. Put simply, CDAs know how to nurture the emotional, physical, intellectual, and social development of children.

Earning the CDA credential has many advantages, including exposure to the larger community of early childhood educators. Over 800,000 CDA credentials have been issued to date!

Becoming a CDA is a big commitment, but one that creates confident practitioners with command of today’s best practices for teaching young children.
